Need Recruits For Air Force Officer States

Harvesting is important, but fighting the war is more important. If people fail to harvest all the crops they may be short of a few things to eat but if the war is lost people will be on a diet of rice for the rest of their lives.

These observations were made by officers at No. 3 R.C.A.F. recruiting centre Saturday, in an appeal to young men to get down to enrolling for service in the air force.

Mr. L. A. M. Davidson, enlistment officer at No. 3 centre, pointed out that the entire British Commonwealth Air Training plan calls for a certain number of men to enter the air force in the next few months.

It is like an endless chain and when one part of the chain stops the entire length is halted for the training.

Young men are urged to make application at once, even if they require some leave to assist in harvesting.

In this manner the even flow of trainees through the war set-up is maintained. Otherwise a serious bottleneck may develop in the great training plan.

Italy Command Claims Sinking Of British Sub

In Italian communiqués, making it impossible to check the claim against British reports.

The War Strategy

Realism, Not Emotion, Must Decide Time of Second Front

By JOHN COLLINGWOOD READE

This decision of a second front in Europe is full of emotional dynamic and threatens to become an issue of cleavage in Canada at a time when unity of purpose and mutual trust are most to be desired.

Not unnaturally, those who are of the "left" suspect that highly placed persons in Britain and the United States are still obsessed with a desire to see Germany and Russia destroy each other, leaving the Anglo-Saxon powers to administer the coup de grace when they are good and ready and can do it cleanly. Whereafter, these powers will be able to enjoy the fruits of victory.

There may have been a few cynics in positions of influence who have held this view. But it is morally certain that Messrs. Churchill, Roosevelt, Cripps, Ailes, Bevin and Morrison are not included among their number.

Britain and the United States have been committed publicly by their respective leaders to open a second front in Europe. Since the Moscow conference, both Messrs. Churchill and President Roosevelt have reaffirmed their intentions, and declared that plans for offensive action in the European theatre of war have been drawn up and are agreed upon. No one of good heart and good faith would magnify the obstacles in the way of opening another front in Europe, nor be content with anything less than the application of the greatest possible pressure at the earliest possible moment to relieve the pressure on Russia.

SHOULD A NOT COURAGE DISASTERS

So great is the emotional tension, however, that some persons are becoming indignant at the very suggestion of problems which must be examined and solved before action is taken. No one is more impatient of the delay than the present writer. But indignation should not be directed at those who are unwilling to court failure by taking ill-considered action without sufficient preparation or proper equipment.

Russia has suffered and is still suffering from the disaster which has befallen her. The nature of the task that must ultimately be undertaken and expected to pressure for it soon enough or realistically enough.

The German, fighting both in Russia and in Egypt, have found it difficult enough with all their ingenious assault equipment, their perate defences in depth, their captured Crete, they evolved a special technique for the purpose. They employed a specially trained force using specially designed equipment. Naval power proved helpless to avert the disaster which they had planned and successfully inflicted upon British forces.

The problem of the second front in Europe is a problem in tactics and logistics, not a problem in politics, except in so far as there still may be military commanders or political leaders who refuse to see the urgency of beginning it.

NECESSITY IS PLAIN

Every public statement so far made by British and American military as well as by the British press seems to indicate that civil and military authorities alike are agreed on the urgency of taking large-scale offensive action. The only questions remaining to be answered are how, when and where.

General Smuts, in whose judgment Mr. Churchill has always had great faith, says the quickest and most economical results can be obtained by removing the Axis from North Africa first. Mr. Churchill himself implied in his speech to the house of commons that the Tenth army and other forces under command of General Sir Harry Maitland Wilson might be moved

Seven City Officers Win Qualifications at Currie Barracks School

Twenty-seven young officers qualified for their second "pips" as lieutenants and were presented with certificates at a graduation ceremony held at A16 C.I.T.C. Currie Barracks on Saturday morning.

Included in the class was Edmond B. Allen of 8309 155 street, this city, who served overseas in the present war with the Edmonton Regiment, and took part in the raid on Spitzbergen, in which the Canadian soldiers first distinguished themselves in the present war.

Seven Edmonton men were among the graduates. These from Calgary, two from Medicine Hat, and one each from Vancouver, Regina and Raymond. There were three Regina men, six from Clonville and one each from Fernie, B.C. and Montreal, Quebec, in the class.

CHANGING HOME

The mission became the Beulah Home two years after its founding, where the advantages of space and proximity to the Commonwealth Air Training plan would facilitate the work, and where inland was an ideal place for combined operations involving air, land and sea forces.

PRODUCTION IS A FACTOR

It is the business of staff officers to answer the questions how and where in so far as the second front is concerned, because it is their responsibility to decide on the tactics, design the equipment and train the men. When a question which can be answered only by management and labor in the war factories which are turning out the equipment.

The risk of failing in any continental enterprise is one which should be taken only if the peril Russia threatens to destroy her military effectiveness in Europe in the next few months. This conclusion is not based on whether or not the Anglo-American combination will suffer loss, humiliation and hardship. Those sacrifices we must be prepared to make quickly and willingly. But the failure of major Anglo-American operations in western Europe would prolong the war so much that the Russians themselves would lose millions more men, and the enslaved people of Europe would be lifted for a moment, and expelled to expose themselves, then plunged into an abyss of despair and tribulation.

A success on the western front would put Germany out of the war within a matter of months, save millions of lives, Russian as well as Anglo-Saxon, and redeem the people of Europe from their present predicament as they had been broken and well as subject.

The difference between success and failure is probably only a matter of weeks. We should risk failure before it is too late to be stampeded by creditable emotions or divided by unworthy suspicions if the best available judgment sets the date for a European invasion a few weeks hence.

PROBLEM IS TWOFOLD

The accompanying map shows the main direction of Axis pressure in western theatre of war, and the directions in which Allied counter-offensive might be applied. As it is suggested before the problem is a two-fold one of plugging the holes defensively and of mounting an offensive pressure to break the Axis.

There is a bad outlook, because the organization of defenses would be still further complicated by precise and concentrated aerial bombardment which would close the streets, make it impossible to move the essential services necessary to maintain organized civilian existence.

TODAY'S MESSAGE

By Rev. Robert Magowan, First United Church, Lethbridge.

"Life's First Essential"

OUR generation has a big obsession but not a "magnificent obsession." It has developed an insatiable craving for "things" and almost burnt its soul out to obtain them. While judgment for this greed is now upon us we are but slowly being convinced of our error.

At his Exhortation service the Archbishop of Canterbury said, "The world is learning its helplessness apart from God, but learning it slowly." This statement puts its index finger on the chief cause of our trouble—the fact that, in the main, we are living apart from God. "We have tried to play our own game," says Dr. Geo. A. Buttrick. And what a price we have paid!

It is time for a change of heart and conduct. We must proceed immediately to cultivate a new atmosphere. A new awareness of God—what Brother Lawrence calls "The Practice of the Presence."

A few years ago Dean Inge selected the following inscription for the side chapel in Westminster Church, as suitable for the present age: "We are now in a life God." We must find time for this stillness.

Then we need a new quality of leadership, a quality devoid of self-interest—What John Owenham had in mind when he wrote:

"What we lack and sorely need, For lack of which we bleed and bleed, Is men of a more Godly breed!"

T. E. Lawrence, in describing the army which he led victoriously into Damascus tells us that the men required as a leader one who also with them, were what they were, and with them, and yet appeared better in himself. Leaders must be on a level with their followers, yet above them. Theirs must be the wisdom that comes from above, and the love that shares the burdens of men of a more Godly breed!"

Then we must have a new Objective, and that must be nothing less than what St. Paul describes as the Kingdom "not of men and drink, but righteousness and peace and good will to men." The President of the United States, in a recent speech, said that the central aim of the United States "can be and must be the century of the common man. . . . It is all there is of every one of us. Life's first essential is 'Seek ye first the Kingdom of God.'"

Child's Life Maimed If Parents Divorced

Such Youngsters Become Morbid And Self-Conscious: They Feel The Loss Of Mother's Father's Love And Confidence

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband and I no longer love each other. We are still friendly and our home is very happy. We never quarrel and we still occasionally have fun together. We have kept up appearances for the sake of our three-year-old baby girl.

My husband feels that due to the fact that we are separated, that he provides everything we need—although I am self-sufficient, that we have a beautiful home, that we never annoy each other and hold love the baby dearly, we should keep our home intact and seek what pleasures we can find outside. I feel otherwise. I am only 30, attractive, and I want love and affection from the man I am married to.

This, my husband says, he cannot give me. This feeling between us has gone on for almost two and one-half years. I am tired of the way we have been acting. I am right in wanting this divorce. I have been separated from the separation of my parents. I have still time for me to meet a man who can give me the love I crave?

IN DOUBT
Answer: Your baby will suffer if affection and guidance are withdrawn from her. You are right in wanting this divorce. I have still time for me to meet a man who can give me the love I crave?

EXPECT THE IMPOSSIBLE
Can you think of any position more miserable for a woman than to be divorced and remarried between the two households, knowing he or she had not been married in either one and was embarrassed in both?

After nine years of the ups and downs of every day life, the happiest marriage has settled down into a beautiful friendship. There are no more tears, no more misapprehensions, no more fevers, but a quiet, steady, and faithful and remembered kindnesses, and peace and comfort and the blessed assurance of the future.

ANNOYED BY CHILDREN
Dear Miss Dix: You tell mothers to keep out of the way and let their children do as they please. What about children, however, who are not so well behaved? What about children, however, who are not so well behaved? What about children, however, who are not so well behaved?

Minute Make-Ups
ANSWER: Well, Loraine, I don't know what you can do with children who are not so well behaved. What about children, however, who are not so well behaved? What about children, however, who are not so well behaved?

CANT TAKE A HINT
Children can't take a hint. They are not so well behaved. What about children, however, who are not so well behaved? What about children, however, who are not so well behaved?

Alberta District News In Brief

Farmers Take Action as Bears,

Marauder is Killed at St. Paul

Cougars Attacking Livestock

RIMBEY—You can take the country away from the bears and the bears but you can't take the bears away from the country. At least from the Rimby country where one big black bear whose footprints were as large as those of a plowhorse proved the other day by taking a stroll across a field where Leonard Blitch was operating a cultivator.

Blitch saw Brum leaving his field and heading toward William's farm. Knowing that his neighbor, Glen Goring, was down there repairing fence, Blitch informed him of a probable visitor.

BEAR ESCAPES

Tracks were plainly visible, and following them, they saw the animal in the field but when he found he was being spied upon, Mr. Bear took off at a gallop and disappeared in the direction of the Allan Neden farm from which he was taken. No further report has been received of the bear but women and children of that district are none too anxious to continue going to the woods and pastures where the cows and men are keeping kins loaded just in case.

And this is not the only visitation from the bears—recently a yearling heifer owned by Mrs. Emily Gear of the Leda district was attacked and mauled by some ferocious animal. It was the opinion of the farmer that it could have been a large timber.

Frank Speight, old-timer of Rimby, brought news of the attack on the animal into Rimby and by careful nursing, the heifer has been saved.

Still closer to Rimby and only about three miles from the Lockhart road, nine bears were seen in a deep canyon. The R.C.A.F. have been there.

SHARP-SHOOTERS GET BEARS AT ST. PAUL

ST. PAUL—A black bear, weighing 350 pounds, was shot

BEARS COMING TO TOWN

recently on Walter Shult's farm, 15 miles north of St. Paul by Vernon and Clarence Carver.

This bear had been feeding on pigs and sheep in the district and was the cause of much trouble. Mr. Shult's sheep. The first night he succeeded in killing a ram, weighing 110 lbs. and he was partially devoured.

TWO GOOD SHOTS

Before daybreak Friday, Mr. Shult heard the bear gnawing at the carcass of the dead sheep so he called the two boys to go after him. Circling behind him, who heard them and made a dash for the underbrush they fired two timely shots; the first fired by Vernon lodged above and between the eyes while the second by Clarence penetrated the shoulder to pierce the heart. Both were fatal shots released from 30-30's at a distance of 30 yards.

Due to lack of berries many bears are wandering in from the north in search of food and sometimes prove costly to farmers. Four of these marauders are prowling in the St.

Paul district with many hunters on the lookout for them.

FARMERS PLAN HUNT COUGARS AT ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE—Frank Hawthorn of Strathcona, 100 miles southwest of town, reports a cougar has been seen within 100 yards of his place. The cougar is full of cougar tracks, and several young cubs are missing.

So far, hunters have not been able to get within shooting distance of the cougar. The cougar is over, they are going to organize a hunt for cougars. Many other districts report cougars and special hunters are being frequently sent from homesteaders' buildings.

Foothills Holds Sports Program

FOOTHILLS—Fair chicks recently

shone on one of the most successful sports days held in Foothills for a long time. The third annual sports day held by the Foothills Cross got away to a flying start and bingo, and other games kept the crowd going until the end of the day when Foothills defeated Cold Valley 15-7 down a good crowd.

C. Gray, on his horse, "Ducky" won the horse race, while Eddie and Stale Romanuk took first prize in the amateur contest with their guitar duet. Several races were held for the children. The sale of handicrafts was well supported. Outside the booth a big bass was sold with hot dogs and soft drinks while inside the ladies were kept busy sewing society.

In the evening, Ray Hickman and his Swingers played for their fare well dance. It is expected that more than $500 will be realized from the day's activities, the sale of a quilt and the dance.

Four Injured in Highway Mishaps

MANVILLE—Four persons were admitted to the municipal hospital as a result of recent accidents. Miss Helen Samson, 16, of Manville, head injuries and Miss Eva Melby, 16, of Manville, bruised ribs and cuts sustained when a car struck them on the road at Manville.

Persons driven by B. Burch, Manville, and J. F. Gernsey, grain company trolley, Calgary, collided at a rural intersection here recently. It was reported that Mr. Burch was coming onto the highway and failed to see the other car approaching.

Clare Hollingsworth and his Army and Navy Pals of Edmonton paid a visit to Manville for two exhibitions and a game of football. Manville Blue Birds, intermediate champions of the province, in the first game Manville got the jump on the seniors and collected four runs in the first inning. Brilliant pitching by Dorothy McFadden held the store girls down until the ninth inning when they got their three runs on two errors by the Blue Birds, making the final score 4 to 3. Manville, D. McFadden, Jean and Lynn Umphries, J. White and Len Mans.

In the second game Edmonton used three pitchers to defeat the onslaught of the Blue Birds but the Manville team went ahead to win by the score of 11 to 1. The Schomacher pitched a steady and allowed two hits. Merley McFadden pitched a steady and allowed one hit. Merley McFadden pitched a steady and allowed one hit.

REMODEL REPAIR AND RE-BUILD

Oil to Coal Conversion is Now Simplified

If your heating system uses a gas-oil conversion oil burner, you should not be cold this winter, and you can comply easily with the government's request that all possible fuel-oil users convert their heating plants to coal.

One device introduced to meet the fuel-oil conversion consists of a series of grate bars mounted on bearing blocks across the top of the heating combustion-chamber, which once installed, makes it possible to switch from oil to coal in about ten minutes.

If you have a stock of fuel oil on hand, you can have the coal-burning device installed now, but continue to use fuel oil until your supply has been consumed. The change-over is made in two operations. The first, which the manufacturer recommends, takes about two hours. It consists of removing bearing blocks to win by the score of 11 to 1. The Schomacher pitched a steady and allowed two hits. Merley McFadden pitched a steady and allowed one hit.

Home Designed for Colorfulness

Paint Protection Against Moisture

Manitoba is one of the worst enemies that the home owner has to combat. For it causes rapid deterioration of all surfaces it is allowed to penetrate. So it behooves us to keep painted everything that is paintable.

Open joints in brick work are particularly harmful, for they admit moisture, which not only causes deterioration of the cement and mortar but can also find its way into the interior walls.

An iron cement has come to our attention which, it is said, when added to Portland cement and sand makes an unusually strong, hard mortar which forms a tighter joint than ordinary mortar. Either bricks or tile can be re-jointed with this special mixture.

Greetings Are Extended to Jewish People As New Year's Observance Planned in City

Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish
New Year, will be observed Sept. 12 and 13. Special religious services will be held in the city, and prayers will be offered for the termination of terrorism and persecution.
Rt. Lt. Jacob J. Eisen, R.C.A.F., former Rabbi here, offers a message for the New Year:"On the eve of the New Year, I wish to extend to the Jewish community of Edmonton and district my best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year.""The past year has been one of extreme sorrow to our brethren in enslaved Europe.
Hundreds of thousands of our people have been brutally persecuted by the Nazi murderers, and those who have survived are still exposed to the horrors of Hitler's New Order."However, we can already see the first signs of victory for the United Nations when these criminals will receive their just punishment, and an era of permanent peace and justice will be ushered in."It is pointed out that this year, special significance is being attached to the New Year's celebrations, because the Jews in terrorized Europe are now living through the most tragic period in their long history of suffering andmartyrdom. Subjected to the most brutal persecution that "has ever been levelled against any people" they stand firm against the enemy, convinced that his evil designs never will materialize while Jewry in the rest of the world is carrying on the heroic struggle against the most brutal power which has ever threatened the liberty and very life of humanity.On this New Year, every Jew in every corner of the earth will offer the most fervent prayers for the victorious end of our struggle for the liberation of terrorized humanity and for a lasting and righteous peace.The Staff and

In Three Years of War the Canadian People Have Become a Nation of Warriors There's Work for Every Member of Family in Struggle Against Freedom's Foe

Canada's ships bear great share of all convoy work, patrol U.S. and Canadian coastlines. A navy of 450 ships and 41,000 men, it started with 15 ships and 1,800 men in 1939. Photo shows ship carrying troops on a combined operation.

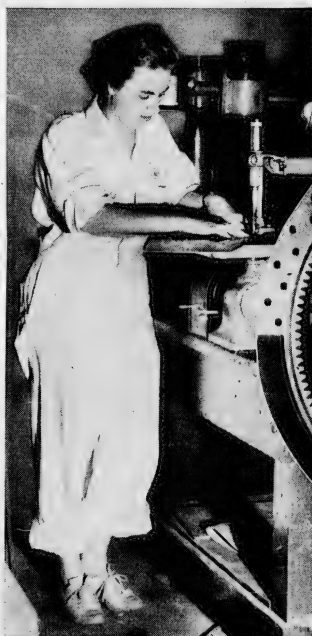

Food for fighting men, for munitions workers and other Victory Bond purchasers is produced by 1,250,000 farm workers. If Britain were cut off from her munitions supply she could carry on for some time.

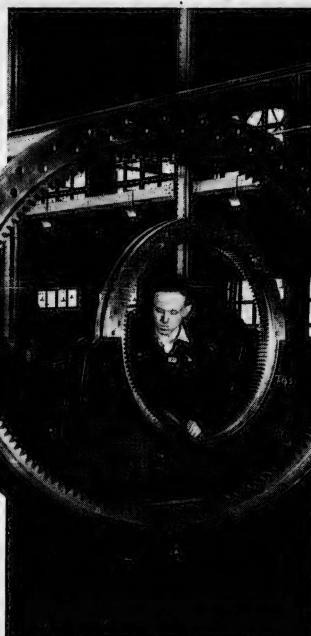

but not if Canada's food convoys were blocked. This year's bumper grain crop assures Britain of plenty. Courageous merchant seamen are also carrying more cheese, fish, pork products across the sea.

The Army is not "going to sit back of the ditch that's called the English channel", says Gen. McNaughton and 550,000 soldiers at home and abroad cheer his words.

In all future expansion of war industry, Canada must rely upon womanpower, now 145,000 strong in munitions and related factories. They'll be registered Sept. 14.

Ships, tanks, planes, guns—all the tools of war are pouring off our production lines, fashioned by 900,000 skilled workers, mostly trained since war's beginning.

On top of taxes and compulsory savings, $1,200,000,000 must be loaned this year to finance the war. Most of us are buying certificates and bonds, must buy more.

Proud of Dad's new wings is the warrior's son. R.C.A.F.'s 125,000 fighting airmen have distinguished themselves in action in Britain, the Middle East and Ceylon. Training Plan schools thousands of R.A.F. and Australian fliers.

Mother is still master of morale, saving by economy in the kitchen, working for Red Cross and Citizens' Service Committees, keeping the home fires burning.

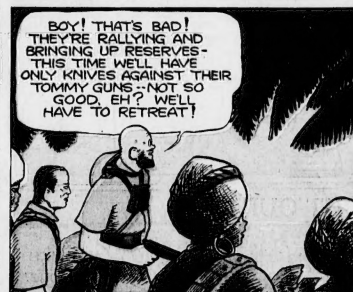

Father pays taxes, buys Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates, works for an A.R.P. unit. He is riding a bicycle or street car to work instead of using his car, operating his business in spite of shortage of manpower and materials.
